David Elkington lives in Wellington, Somerset and recently retired from teaching at Wellington School. He has been lecturing to local societies for over 50 years on Roman and Greek history. His first degree at Durham was in Classics and for his MA he researched the Roman lead industry in Somerset. He has worked on archaeological sites in Greece, Turkey, Sicily and North Africa and lectures on The Romans in Somerset and other parts of the Roman Empire. David will give us a fascinating insight into the place of our area in the fortunes of the Roman Empire.
